Dumplings
with
Royal Baking Powder

No dessert is more delicious, wholesome and appetizing than a well-made dumpling, filled with the fruit of the season. By the use of the Royal Baking Powder the crust is always rendered light, flaky, tender and digestible. Dumplings made with it, baked or boiled, will be found to be a most delicious and healthful food. One quart of flour, thoroughly sifted, with three teaspoons of Royal Baking Powder and a small quantity of salt, mix with one cup of butter or lard, and one cup of water, and mix to a stiff dough. Roll out on a floured board, and cut in squares, or circles, or any other shape desired. Fill with fruit, or any other filling, and seal the edges with your fingers. Boil in salted water for ten minutes, or steam for fifteen minutes. In all receipts calling for cream of tartar, use the Royal Baking Powder. It is a pure, healthful, and economical. Royal Baking Powder is specially made for use in the preparation of the finest and most delicate cookery.

FASHION NOTES.

(Godley's Lady's Book) Long cloaks are in great favor for large and small children.
Passmenterie is extremely elegant this season, and the prices of the handmade styles are exorbitant.
Olefin feathers have not been as popular for years as at present. Very long ones and bunches of both being used.

The flat Chinese, or Tonkin hat in felt, promises to be the favorite this winter for girls of four years and upward.

Woolen goods are especially elegant in their texture and combination of coloring this season. What used to be called robe patterns predominate, the combination to be used coming together.

Cloth gowns are trimmed with braiding, embroidery, or passementerie; the braiding in many instances forming tassels across the edge of the skirt, while others have front or side panels covered entirely over.

Velvet sleeves are worn in cloaks and gowns. Many of them are in mutton-leg shape, high above the arm-hole, and much wrinkled around the arms. The addition of these sleeves freshen up an old garment from last season.

Very dressy toilettes red of Nile green cashmere are made up for misses, with a black velvet Figaro jacket, the double skirt being trimmed with rows of velvet ribbon. This same style is also adopted for ladies' gowns.

Usters are very plainly shaped, long and double-breasted, with princess breasted throughout. They are made of checked or plaid cloths, and are fastened with large smoked pearl buttons.

The art of assembling is exalted in many artistic fashions. Enameled brooches are in great demand.
A spray of mistletoe, another of lily-of-the-valley, are among the prettiest.
The pansy, with its dewy, diamond-tipped petals, is the latest.

Godley's Lady's Book for November is just out and presents an attractive appearance. The publishers offer any person sending their address and two cents stamp will receive a cut paper pattern free. A pretty frontispiece illustration, an extra colored fashion plate, which is a gem and done by a new process.
Black fashions and fancy work pages with a folded colored sheet full of articles suitable to make up for Christmas gifts. Among the literary features, "A Bit of Galatry," by Emily Leubach, is a charming story, in a manner, "The Elkins Silver," by Annie Weston Whitney, "The First Ball Dress," by Emily Reed, "Aunt Sara's Will," by Sara B. Scarborough, "Destiny," by Ada Marie Peck, and "Edie, A Thanksgiving Story," by A. F. are all attractive short stories.
The serial, "A Model American Girl," by David Lowry, is concluded, delighting its numerous readers by the happy ending for the principal characters. "A Woman's Way," by Elise Snow, is also concluded, making all capital of the old story. "A Well that ends well." Numerous poems, fashion and work articles, household, etc., complete a large and good number.

1889 is also contained in this number, and promises many attractive features for the New Year.

A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court.
From a story by Mark Twain under the above title in the November Century we quote the following:
"There was not even a bell or a speaking-tube in the castle. I had a great many servants and those that were on duty took to the stairs, and when I wanted one of them I had to go and call for him. There was no gas, there were no candles; a bronze dish half full of boarding-house butter with a blazing rag floating in it was the thing that produced what was regarded as light. A lot of these hung along the walls and modified the dark-just tinted it down enough to make it dim. If you went out at night, your servants carried torches. There were no books, pens, paper, or ink, and no glass in the openings they believed to be windows. It is a little thing, but it is a thing, until it becomes a big thing. But perhaps the worst of all was, that there wasn't any sugar, coffee, tea or tobacco. I saw that I was just another Robinson Crusoe cast away on an uninhab-ited island, with no society but some more or less tame animals, and if I wanted to make life bearable I must do as he did, invent, contrive, create; reorganize things, set brain and hand to work, and keep them busy.
Well, that was my line."

From Fremont, Nebraska.
I have had scrofula until it made my life a burden. I was incessantly miserable, sick, weak, sleepless, and unhappy; despairing that the short time which remained to have been spent in this way. I tried doctors and medicine, but to no avail. I tried to get to sea, but I was not strong enough to do so. I tried to get to the mountains, but I was not
get to the tropics, but I was not
